PONGEES HARD TO MATCH

Pongee silk is the undyed silk of silkworms fed on the leaves of the scrub oak chiefly, though other trees are used in some portions of the pongee district. The silk is produced almost exclusively in Shantung province and portions of North China immediately adjacent.

The real pongee cloth, made of this uncolored specially produced silk is distinct from the pongees of commerce made in all colors from other silk. Each piece of cloth is made from a particular lot of silk, and, therefore, each piece varies from all other pieces in exact quality, weight and fineness, and in a slight degree in color and other qualities.

There are certain general grades of cloth, certain varieties of weave, certain popular weights, etc.; but women shopping in Chinese pongees find it very difficult to match pieces, and on the face of things it is practically impossible to furnish any great number of pieces of a certain weight, grade and quality such as a modern clothing manufacturing establishment would require to standardize a certain line of garments from that particular cloth, says the Daily Consular and Trade Reports. Doubtless special arrangements could be made for the standardizing of a certain amount of the cloth, but it could be had only by such an arrangement.

The primary market for pongee is in Shantung province, where it is produced, and most of the exports go out through Chefoo and Kiaochau. About 10 per cent of the product goes directly to the United States, 18 per cent to Great Britain direct, 57 per cent to France direct and about 15 per cent to Hongkong for further distribution, some of which goes to the United States.

In buying and selling silk goods in China the standard is the piece, the price of a piece resting primarily upon its weight. Pongees in Hongkong for example, are sold by the piece, no matter how much silk of any particular standard is taken, and billed by the piece. Silk from Hongkong are packed in tin-lined cases and are shipped by the most direct route, involving the least period at sea.

When a medicine must be given to young children it should be pleasant to take. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is made from loaf sugar, and the roots used in its preparation give it a flavor similar to maple syrup, making it pleasant to take. It has no superior for colds, croup and whooping cough. For sale by all dealers.

INCREASED COST OF LIVING

A writer in a French woman's paper makes an interesting comparison between the cost of living for a fashionable woman today and thirty years ago.

An income of $4000 was counted as wealth thirty years ago," says the writer. "The woman who dressed in the height of fashion paid anything between $30 and $60 for a smart frock, while a hat that cost as much as $20 was looked upon as an unheard-of extravagance.

"The most elegant hats were seldom priced above $9, and as for a morning gown trimmed with lace and ribbon, it might be had for $10 or $15. The highest price given for an evening cloak was about $60, and if a woman treated her friend at a confectioner's shop she would spend less than 50 cents on chocolate and cake for both.

"A drive in the park cost less than $1, and a carriage could be hired for the whole day at $5. Anybody who hired a carriage by the month was thought very rich, and those who had their own were spoken of as millionaires.

"Compare this with today. A simple walking costume is priced at from $60 to $120. An 'inexpensive' visiting frock will cost anything above $150, while a really elegant morning gown cannot be had under $100. A fur cloak is not dear at $4000, and a plain hat costs $40. Hats may run up to $300 or more.

"Most smart women have their own automobiles, while their less fortunate sisters must be content with hiring a car at $10 for half a day. Afternoon teas run into dollars, and altogether an income of $20,000 a year is, according to the Parisian phrase, just good enough to make $40,000 worth of debts."

A curious fact is that incomes of $20,000 a year are not now thought so very much of. This is true not only of Paris, but also of London, St. Petersburg and even Berlin, Dresden and Frankfurt, and the question is asked, "Where has all the money come from?"

"Our baby cries for Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," writes Mrs. T. B. Kendrick, Rasaca, Ga. "It is the best cough remedy on the market for coughs, colds and croup." For sale by all dealers.
